

In This Issue

Tea Parties Teach!

Tips & Tricks

In The News

Monthly Sale Items

Speaking Events

Quick Links

Patricia's Books & Products

Celebrating Failures Blog

NAFCC

Join Our Mailing List!

May Newsletter

The NAFCC Election Ballot will be out soon, I hope I can count on all of you to support me and vote for me for President! I'd also appreciate it if you could spread the word to your colleagues. I have worked very hard on the NAFCC Strategic Plan and Board Communication in the past year and I am looking forward to taking the lead in seeing NAFCC reach it's goals, build a successfully working board, and connect more closely with each of it's members. Thank you for your support, it's greatly appreciated!

*Hug a kid for me!
Patricia*

Fabulous Fieldtrips

Summer is knocking on the door and it's time to open that door and run outside to discover all we can about this wonderful world we live in! While everyone agrees that giving children hands on experiences and exposing them to a variety of environments is great for brain development for them, many providers are afraid to take the plunge because of the potential headaches it will cause for their brain! How can anyone take a large group of kids out and about and not go crazy? It's actually much easier than you may think. With some pre-planning, a little organization and a positive attitude, you'll be out your door before you know it and opening up a entire world of learning possibilities for the children in your care.

There are six key elements to planning and implementing a successful field trip for all:

- Be prepared. This means packing a fieldtrip back with everything you could possibly need - from Band-Aids to diapers. Think through the entire trip and imagine all the possibilities, then pack what you need to handle all those situations.
- Train the kids. Keeping control over the children while out is as easy as playing Red Light/Green Light. Teach the kids that when you say "Green Light," they can walk ahead on their own, but that when you say "Red Light," everyone should STOP, TURN AROUND and LOOK AT YOU. This is not only fun for the kids; it easily keeps your group together and following your direction.
- Know where you're going. Have a good understanding of the layout of the place you are visiting. If you have young ones in a stroller, will there be stairs? Where are the bathrooms (PLAN to take a break there!)? How far will they be walking - can all of your children handle this or will you need a stroller? What would be the appropriate shoes/clothes for the kids to wear that day? Is there food available there for a snack/meal, or will you need to pack some? If it is a tour, who is your guide and where do you meet them? How close can you park to the door? Have a good understanding of the layout and how you will guide the children through it.
- Account for children - don't count them. This is the biggest mistake made on fieldtrips with multiple chaperones and the number one reason children will get lost. Rather than have everyone watching everyone, assign a particular group of children to each adult - then have that adult learn their names and assure their presence by calling their name. When you simply count head of kids it is too easy to accidentally count the head of a child from a different group. Know who your kids are and visually account for their presence.
- Plan for "check-in's." Take regular stops to check in with the children, account for their presence, see if there are any issues such as a dirty diaper, someone is thirsty, etc. Don't wait for it to be an emergency.
- Make it FUN! Children are much more likely to follow your guidance and learn from the experience if they are having fun! Be sure you are going somewhere developmentally appropriate for the age you have. If you are on a tour and the guide seems to be talking in a level too difficult for the children to understand - translate. Put it in words that will interest them, offer questions to the guide that will provide the information most important to your children. This also means thinking ahead to points in the fieldtrip that may not offer much fun - such as waiting (for the train to come, for the tour guide, for the food, etc.). Always pack activities to use during this time such as small notebooks/pencils for the kids to draw on, a puppet or books.

Taking fieldtrips can be as much fun for you as it is for the children! I have taken over 900 fieldtrips in my career, and I firmly believe it's not only what has lead to exceptional learning for my children, but that the fun I have on these trips reduces my stress levels and has contributed to a long and happy career. Fieldtrips are something that gets better every time you do them. Children who rarely go on fieldtrips will have a harder time understanding what is acceptable behavior in a variety of settings. Children who have been going on fieldtrips since infancy will grow up understanding how they work and what is expected of them - creating fewer problems (if any!) for you.

So you're ready to give it a shot - but where do you go?

EVERYWHERE! I have literally taken my hometown yellow pages, and planned fieldtrips at every listing from A-Z! Go beyond parks, zoos and museums (although definitely go there!) and show your kids what's going on all over your town. Visit construction sites, realtor offices, the barbershop, the theatre, photographer, florist, car dealer and more! Every place in this world will offer something - colors, sounds, letters, people, events, science - it's all there if you just take a little time to plan ahead and pull every lesson possible out of the location you're heading too.

When I attended the first high school graduation of one of my former preschool students, I asked her what her favorite part of my school was and it was an enthusiastic "fieldtrips!" She even went on to tell me one of her favorites was visiting the hospital where the nurses showed the children what to expect if they ever had to come to the emergency room. She said she lost her fear of having to go to a hospital after that because the nurses were all so nice. She is now enrolled at the University of Wisconsin Nursing School.

Open your door - and you'll be opening the door to a child's future!

For more information, check out the Fieldtrips chapter of From Babysitter To Business Owner. Get yours TODAY! Visit: www.patriciadischler.com.

Tips & Tricks

Spring is here, and how do we know this? NATURE! So bring some more of it into your program...

- Fill your sensory table with rocks and pebbles, or dirt!
- Ask a parent that owns woods if they have a log (preferably hollow) they can bring in to your outdoor play area.
- Also ask parents for sticks - of all sizes - to build forts with.
- Build some raised flower beds to plant a garden in with the children.
- Use 3 foot clear tubes (4 inch diameter) mounted on a board, fill with potting soil, plant different varieties of corn in each and watch the root system grow! Or, do smaller ones using dandelions!
- Pick a spot outside where it's okay to dig in the ground, provide a variety of digging supplies including small shovels, sticks, spoons, or cups.
- Take time to lay in the grass, close your eyes and smell. Then look up at the clouds for awhile and name the shapes you see.
- When planting gardens, plant lots of flowers for cutting - the smell of fresh cut flowers always brightens up a room, even a classroom!
- Make sound jars using plastic film containers with 2 each filled with the same number of small pebbles, making 4-5 different sets. Not only have the children match them by the sounds, but put in order (based on sound) as to which has the least/most rocks in it.
- Switch out your plastic bins for wicker baskets.
- Get a pretty basket or lace doily to put on your main table and each day place on it an item from nature for the children to explore. (lay a few magnifying glasses on it too). Items such as shells, leaves, bark, a bowl of sand, etc.
- Pour small amounts of sand onto small cookie sheets, or plates with sides, for children to use their fingers to draw pictures by moving the sand around.

In the News

NAFCC 2011 Conference - Come to my sessions: Teaching the 3 Cs Train the Trainer, Teaching Outside the Box & Fabulous Fieldtrips!
Quest for Quality: Supporting Happy, Healthy Children
Come join me and all the nation's top experts in our field for high quality trainings, networking, and the opportunity to rejuvenate you and your career! We'll be at the beautiful Green Valley Ranch Resort Las Vegas in Henderson, Nevada, July 21-23, 2011. Easy layaway plan available, check it out at: www.nafcc.org and I'll see you there!

Monthly Sale Items

May Sale Item: 101 Tips & Tricks - $2 Off!
This tips booklet is filled with 101 ideas for saving you time and money when working with children. Homemade toys, lots of activities, ways to keep things cleaner and more organized, how to work with parents, make books, and more! If you've ever attended my workshop on this topic, that's only about 30% of what's in the book, so get now to get dozens more of these great ideas!
Regular Price: $8.00 Sale Price: $6.00

June Sale Item: Patty Cake Kids & The Lost Imagination Cap - 50% Off!
The only children's storybook that has a family child care setting, but more than that, this book gets your children to use their own "imagination caps" and gets their creative juices flowing! A great gift for your child care children - stock up today at this great price!
BONUS: If you send a list of the children's names I will autograph each book them specifically!
Regular Price: $9.85 Sale Price - $5.00

Order yours today at: www.patriciadischler.com or www.KIDBIZResources.com!

Speaking Events

May 10, 2011
Merton, Wisconsin
Writer's Roundup
All day sessions with Merton school children K-8on becoming a writer.

May 21, 2011
Great Falls, Montana
Full Day Training: Crazy for Kids, Teaching the 3 Cs, and Tips & Tricks
For more information visit: www.ccs-mt.org

June 18, 2011
Harvard, Illinois
Half Day Training: Professionalism: Open the Door to So Much More!
4 C's of McHenry Illinois
For more information visit: www.four-c.org

June 25, 2011
Florida Family Child Care Home Association State Conference
Keynote: Teaching Outside the Box
Workshops: Teaching the 3 Cs, Tips & Tricks
For more information visit: www.familychildcare.org

If you are a member of a group planning a training event and would like to book one of my keynotes or workshops, visit the Lecture page on my website and contact me for availability. Visit www.patriciadischler.com/lecture.php.

PERMISSION TO REPRINT: You may reprint any items from KIDBIZ Newsletter in your print or electronic publication, but please include the following paragraph:

Reprinted from KIDBIZ Newsletter, an ezine by child care author and speaker, Patricia Dischler. Subscribe at www.patriciadischler.com.

If you like this newsletter, please pass it on to your fellow colleagues.

If a colleague passed this on to you and you would like to subscribe, visit: www.patriciadischler.com and click the link "Subscribe to Ezines."

PRIVACY STATEMENT: Patricia Dischler will never distribute your address to anyone. Period. Promise.